Foreword

As part of FISSS's ongoing commitment to continual improvement and strengthening its already solidified role within the FE sector, the team have conducted customer satisfaction research across their UK user base, for satisfaction relating to use of the ACE, ACW, MAO and ACE360 platforms.

With 151 survey respondents, of which 66% were Training Providers using ACE, ACW or MAO, 34% being Training Providers using ACE360 for Standards and 22% being End Point Assessment Organisations, the following headline findings were uncovered for FISSS systems:

Regular Use of Systems

We are pleased to see a strong percentage of respondents (69%) indicating regular use of the ACE, ACW and MAO platforms, with a strong 45% of respondents regularly using ACE360.

Apprenticeship Standards

Findings for ACE360's Apprenticeship Solution

FISSS were glad to read respondent's answers which highlighted a high level of uptake for the new ACE360 system, with almost half (46%) stating that they currently use ACE360 – a number which we expect to increase with the accelerated adoption of Apprenticeship Standards over Frameworks, but an impressive percentage nonetheless given the relatively recent introduction of Standards.

Of the respondents stating that they don't use ACE360, only 21.95% are using competing solutions, with 67.07% stating any of the following:

- Their Organisation has an ACE360 account, but have no apprentices ready
- Their Organisation uses ACE360, but they themselves are not allocated users
- Their Organisation currently has no plans to deliver Apprenticeship Standards
- They are not aware of ACE360, but are keen to get started by creating an account

46% already using ACE360, in line with continued adoption of Apprenticeship Standards

With 93% of respondents rating ACE360 as very easy to use, and 86% of respondents agreeing that ACE360 helps them meet their business goals and objectives, The FISSS team believe this feedback to be encouraging as yet further advancements and development is planned for the system to build upon existing customer successes to date.

We have developed and maintained them over the years to ensure we continue our quality service levels. As such, it is fantastic to notice that customers using our newest platform, ACE360, are also reporting high levels of satisfaction with not only the system itself but the range of support and resources provided by FISSS staff at no extra cost.

Any issues raised in the survey and/or areas for system or service improvement have been noted and shared with the relevant teams within the Federation.
